We assere the President and the public generally that Walker's Tonic Bitters has nothing to do with the election of railroad Presidents or any other President, but that they have everything to do with the present generation s health, and that-"In every sip there's life, there's bealth;

Rentucky River Improvement.

The ordinance submitting to the people a city subscription to the Kentucky River Improvement was adopted last Thursday night in the Common Council, and will come up this evening in the Board of Aldermen. The single question of an unfailing and continuous supply of coal to this city, which will be the inevitable result of the improvement in consideration. will be enough in itself to justify a much larger subscription than is asked. Louisville, at the present time, consumes six million bushels of coal per year. This, at fourteen cents, calls for cash from our pockets for the benefit of Pittsburg, to the tune of eight hundred and forty thousand dollars. The Leader of the Murderers Caught. Between six and seven o'clock last evenng Officer Seay returned from Lost some of the gang reported to have done the shooting Saturday night. It is now pretty certain that the four negroes who did all the shooting were Emmet Price and a son of his, with two others named Israel and Vandyke. Officer Scay, getting on the trail of Vandyke, chased him as far as Strawberry Station, on the Nashville railroad, but lost sight of him, after having fired several shots after him. Re turning to the island, Seay found Emmet Price concealed behind a nile of charcoal. He arrested him and brought him to town, along with the musket which it is said he

A MAGNIFICENT HOTEL.

The Maxwell House, Nashville, Tenn. The want of a first-class hotel at Nash ville has long been felt by her own citizens and the traveling public. That want has at last been supplied, and in a manner Col. John Overton.

The Maxwell House is a most magnificent structure, and, in regard to beautiful appearance and imposing dimensions, is surpassed by no hotel, if equaled by any in the southwest. The Maxwell House is situated on the northwest corner of Cherry and Church streets, and runs back to a spacious alley, which divides it from Masonic Temple. Situated on two of the most public thoroughfares, and within convenient distance of the numerou churches, places of amusement and pullic buildings, and being easily accessible from the various railroads and turnpikes running into the city, it possesses advantages equaled by no other locality as a ho-tel site in Nashville. Since the location of the hotel its vicinity has become the center of the retail trade. In dimensions the building fronts 180 feet on Cherry street, 170 feet on Church and covers 30, 600 square feet of ground: The style of architecture is chiefly Corinthian, and the general effect imposing in the extreme At the main entrance tower eight massive Corinthian columns, while immediately above the second and third stories are each set off by ten columns of lesser proortions but similar design. The windows oking upon both streets are ornamented with Corinthian coruices.

The ladies' entrance leads from Churchstreet through an imposing archway, fanci-fully decorated. The grand corridor or promenade, fifty by ninety-five feet, extendng entirely around the rotunda, is support ed by twelve elegant Corinthian columns ith octagonal base and elaborate entab nture of east-iron in flowers and other esigns. The columns are finished in imitation of marble, and so well has the work been done, that any but the most practical eye would be deceived as to their composition. The floor of the corridor is laid with tiles of Belgian slate and Italian The walls and ceilings are splen didly frescoed in the Persian and Moresque styles, embracing the variegated hues of Contradicted, it will be seen, by every other circumstance of the lives of the persons—Lord Byron and his sister—to be affected by it, the "True Story of Lady Byron's Life," as related by Mrs. Stowe, illustrates more forcibly the reason and good sense of the rules of evidence, than any case that may ever be tried in a court of justice, and is equally suggestive as to the danger of taking the story of the wrongs of domestic life solely from the of this? When we contemplate the alleged motives of Lady Byron for disclosing this horrible tale of guilt, which should hardly be named among Christian men, 40 years after her husband's death, we are struck with the extreme puerility-or, as Byron was then at the mature age of sixty four, better the senility-of the reasons for the desirableness of its publication and the necessity this consultation. How could Ludy Byron or her advisers believe that the interest of the masses of the people of England in the cheap edition of Lord Byron's would be diminished by the publica-tion of the fact by his wife that he had and that the wife had assented to that intimacy by living with him during quite their whole married life, until she was driven away? Nor is it explained how i was supposed that this disclosure was to hand in hand with the cheap edition to e people of England. Was it to be put by the publishers as an advertisement to that cheap edition? Without further critising the sufficiency of the motive for this disclosure, i. e. to prevent the sale of the cheap edition, was it the true one If so, how does it comport with the fact stated by Prof. Wilson in Blackwood in 832, that Lady Byron sat specially for ner portrait to illustrate a very high-priced edition of all Byron's works, then about to be published by Murray, and this to enhance the sale of Manfred, Cain, Don nan and all, among the aristocracy of ments on the horrible crime alleged to ave been committed as follows:

How did Lady Byron learn that this conncction had been going on for nearly a year before her marriage? What valid xeuse can she give for remaining in the ouse where this pollution was present, as Journal. Applying the law of evidence to it, the General says:

A cursory examination of Mrs. Stowe's as Mrs. Stowe declares she did, for more than a year (two), as a cloak and accomplice of such infamy? How, under such circumstances, can the declaration of Mrs. Stowe that she did not leave her hinsband at last, but was "driven" from him be true? For the sake of "pure romanhood"-nay, for the sake of human nature itself—ought not Lady Byron to have fled from such a house as she would ave fled from Sodom and not looked back, and not have been driven from it, even if her views of the duties of a wife would not permit her to denounce the crimes therein perpetrated? She did not hesitate to denounce other women less guilty. For, finding in Byrou's desk the correspondence of a married woman, she sent it to the inured husband. Why was she less thoughtful in regard to her brother-in-law, Col. Leigh? And yet Mrs. Stowe makes it a merit in Lady Byron that she staid in such a house until driven from it by Byron.

We are further called upon to believe that she maintained a "child of sin, which we are to infer was the child of Augusta by her brother. Now here is some thing tangible, because we are told the child lived to a very considerable age. Why have we not heard the story of this child before? Mrs. Leigh had other children by her husband. Why was it not than possible for so bad a woman as its mother to have so claimed its parentage to shield her own reputation? How came either Byron or Mrs. Leigh to put themselves in the power of his wife by leaving the fruit and "damning proof" of their sin in the possession of Lady Byron, when there was so ready a means of conceal Above all, why should not Mrs. Stowe have spoken out plainly? Does she mean to say this "child of sin" was Mrs.

Leigh's or not? We do not here advert to the remarkale sense of duty to herself or the world which induced Lady Byron to foster such a child, born under such circumstances. The Christian spirit of forgiveness which his shows is almost too levely for earth, especially taken in connection with the story of Mrs. Stowe that Lady Augusta nally died in Lady Byron's arms. eems to have forgiven everybody concorned in these transactions, innocent or guilty, save the one most needing it-her To him she is implacable, even after death.

Could it be possible that Byron should write letters demanding reasons for a sep-aration when he had driven his wife away for a deadly guilty reason which he knew too well of?

That correspondence Byron desired to have published, and put it into the hands of his publishers for that purpose after his death. That correspondence Lady Byron caused to be destroyed, so far as he was concerned. She had, it is to be presumed, on her part at least, his letters to her at the time of her consultation with Mrs. Stowe. Did she show the selecters to Mrs. Stowe? They would have been the most "memoranda with the dates af-Do those letters exist now in the hands of her executor or friends? to the memory of her child's father, it is due to literature-nay, to religion and to the world-that those letters should be published and the truth be made known. If the correspondence is of a character like that stated by Lord Byron, it is entirely and totally incompatible with this late statement of his wife. True, it is said that she stated to Dr. Lushington, her lawyer, that which surprised and shocked nim; and he says that after that statement, he could not have advised a coming together of the parties again. But it must be rememberd that her mother had gone down to consult Dr. Lushington on the theory of insanity, one which Lushington found, upor personal examination, to be false. Then, Lady Byron says, she herself went and made a statement, which, Dr. Lushington said, convinced him that they could not live in harmony any more, and he would have nothing to do with trying to effect it. Was that statement incest? Lady Byron nowhere says that it was. Copies of letters which she took from Byron's desk. showing his intrigue with a married wo-man, would have been sufficient to conince Dr. Lushington that the parties had better separate, one would think. rithout the necessity of believing that, he accused, to him, a noble lady of incest. Lady Byron further says in her statement that she had never communicated to her parents the facts upon which she grounded the separation. Miss Martineau is made to say by Mrs. Stowe the same thing in behalf of Lady Byron. May we not inquire why a secret so deadly that the wife kept it from her father and mother during all the years of her life, was a proper one to be disclosed to a lawyer only, or to the world through the columns of an Ameri-

ean magazine? Upon review of the whole matter, in the light of all the evidence of cotemporary facts, of the suppression of all document-ary evidence by the wife, of the extraordinary manner in which this story is given to the public, is it not more consonant with human reason to conclude that the story of Lady Byron, if we have it correctly detailed to us, was a delusion or a mistake, than that this terrible crime in two persors has been committed, and remained unrevealed, except to a select few until this day? We may admit that Lady Byron herself believed this story. nay admit, without seruple, that Mrs. Stowe believes it; but Lady Byron may have believed upon very insufficient evidence, and Mrs. Stowe evidently has taken her belief for the proof of the fact without the slightest examination of the grounds of that statement. But, it may be asked, what motive could Lady Byron have for putting torward this story? Mrs. Stowe, in apologizing for her, feels that there is a necessity for some explanation for the manner in which, and the eauses for which, Lady Byron separated from her husband. The world has felt that, up to to-day, accusing him of the ordinary infi-She took him with those; she lived with him with those; she invited him to her bed, and caused her mother to indorse the invitation, after learning them all. the language of the law she condoned all these. May she not have felt that no other excuse was left her except the one now so unfortunately, and we may hope without an unkind thought toward herso untruthfully put forward? FURTHER PARTICULARS OF THE SCRANTON DISASTER.

Result of the Explorations.

Assistance Offered to the Miners' Families.

NEW YORK, September 9. A Scranton special says later explorations of the mine have develope a sadde phase of the tragedy. Many chambers have been entered and the miners found in them dead, the breasts of nine showing they had been stricken down by sonous gas without a warning whi they were at work. Road men, roof men or men and others, were found dead in different gangways, showing that the destruction must have come swift and sudden

The spirit evinced by the miners to-day has been bitter in the extreme and could not be assuaged by offers of assistance and sympathy which flowed in from every Asa Packer has telegraphed that he offers $2,500 to the bereaved. Gov. Geary offers $5,000. The railroad company make all the ex ertions possible and the wishes of the miners are consulted in every respect, but they remain obdurate. The more reasonare in the minority. Many are refructory

New York, September 8. From information received here by th it is certain that the Sabine is ordered home on account of conspiracy to mntiny among the crew. Three witnesses, another vessel to avoid being revenue tax had not been paid tampered with, have arrived in Boston She was on a fancy cruise, with a gradu ating class of midshipmen, some sixty-odd in number. Her commander is Captain Walker, nephew of Senator Grimes. Borie and Porter sent her out to please Grimes, though the midshipmen and men were very much wanted in the West India squadron, where vessels are without sufficient erews None but sailors engaged in the con-

The trial will take place at Brooklyn after the Sabine arrives. The mutiny, as first reported by the as sociated press, is nearly ail true. Some of the crew, to revenge themselves on their officers, attempted to set fire to the powder magazine and blow up the ship. They had succeeded so far as to light a fuse communicating with the magazine, when the plot was frustrated by a cabin-boy, who discovered the burning fuse. It was found that twenty-two sailors were implicated in the plot, and they were put

From the Huntsville Independent, Sept. 5. We learned yesterday, from a gentle egro, Bob lee, was arrested near Moores ille, be remarked that there was a similar ganization to the Evans band, of Mar nall, in existence in that neighborhood and that a meeting would take place at Bibb's Lane on Friday night, the 3d inst. This was made known to the Sheriff of imestone, who went quietly and summor d a number of white citizens to be ready a that time to go to Bibb's Lane to prove the truth of Ice's assertion. On reach ing the place, they found, save enough, ody of negroes there, and succeeded in rresting five of them, from whom they earned that there was such an organiza tion, and that on Saturday night (last right) it was their purpose to burn the store of William Patterson, and kill him and the two young Donnels and others These negroes were secured, and on the ext day, our informant said, twenty-five more were arrested, who were implicated as members of the band. We suppose they were all taken to Athens, where a full in estigation will be had.

It appears that this section of country was on the verge of a fearful enactment of bloodshed, plunder and rapine, by secret organizations of white and black miscreauts, and some of them known to be Radicals and Loyal Lenguers. With such developments as have come to light, what class of men stand forth as violators o the law, and enemies of the peace an quiet of the State? Is it the "Rebel lass, whom the Radical papers have held up as enemies of the government and fo-menters of strife? We dare the leaders of the party to an investigation, and for one instance of Rebel lawlessness, we can show a hundred cases of Radical deviltry ind outrage.

From the Huntsville Independent, Sept. 6. We learn from a citizen of Vienna that lie judicial investigation of the charge igainst Bob Ice, a Loyal League negro, o articipation in outrages (heretofore pul shed) on the Stevens family in the western part of Marshall county, and in a con-spiracy of negro and white Loyal Leaguers to blow up the village of Vienna and kill certain citizens, was set for Friday last at lee's spring. Bob, after his arrest in Lime one, was taken back to Marshall count y his captors, and was under guard at hi own house, on Thursday night last, when a body of armed men went to his house, and one of them shot him through the owels with a six-shooter, and then entered the house and discharged the other five balls into him, killing him. We under-stand that the man who shot him was without any disgnise whatever, and was not known by the guard or any one else in the

Most Reliable Vermifuge

NEVER FAILS TO EFFECTUALLY

Destroy Worms.

Since the discovery of Santonin, the tasteess, active principle of the European Worms seed (Semen Contra) its cousumption has wonderfully increased. The seed in substance has been long and favorably known as a vermifuge, but its unpleasant taste and odor, and the bulk of the dose, have laterfered with its use in this country. At this time the Santonin, on account of its being tasteless, and a reliable vermifuge, is fast displacing all other remedies for worms. Almost all of the popular worm nostrums of the day depend for their efficacy upon the untonin which they contain; but in these is is found in varying proportions and of uncer tain purity; and very often again in coinbination with other elements unknown to

My purpose is to present to the medical profession this valuable medicine in a sim pie, reliable and agreeable form, in determ ined quantities and of uniform composition To accomplish this, I have prepared these lozenges with great care, of Santonin of tested purity, very carefully distributed throughout the mass from which the Lozenges are formed. The materials have been so compounded that the Lozenges will stand unaltered by ime or climate. The boxes are also imper vious to moisture from the atmosphere. To give the Santonin time for full effect upon the worms, the addition of any purgative medicine to the Lozenges has been avoided. It may, therefore, be proper, two or three hours after the administration of the second dose, to use some simple purgative for the purpose only of discharging the worms. These Lozenges contain only pure Sugar and pure Santonin. The only merit I claim is the ascertained purity of the ingre dients, and its thorough and careful distribu tion, so that each Lozenge contains its ex act portion of Santonin; the dose sufficiently indicating the quantity.

This preparation is a concentrated Fluid Extract of Honduras Sarsaparilia and Queen's Root or Stillingia, containing in soution a neutral salt of Iodine, with aromatles and sugar sufficient to render palatable. The well-known alterative properties of these articles is secured by carefully selecting the crude drugs, for, in the case of Sarsaparilla, tt is a well-known fact that at least nine-tenths of the root on the market is entirely inert from bad handling or age. Fortunately it is easily known. By chewing a little of the root, if good, a prickly sensation is produced In the throat which remains for hours. If it loes not produce this effect, it is worthless. I use none that has not been carefully tested. Good Stillingia is more easily gotten, but, like Sarsaparilia, may lose its efficacy by impropr treatment in the efforts to extract its active rinciple. The process must be carefully

a perfect result. What I Claim as Meritorious in This Compound

Is, that it contains the medicinal principles of extracted by the most approved and scientific process, and is made the vehicle to contain the lodine salt in a condition not liable to be affected by time or decomposed by the chemical action of any other of the articles with which it is associated; but, on the contrary they become valuable adjuncts to its alterative action.

Practitioners are Fully Aware of the Value of Such a Combination as This,

And also of the difficulty of getting it prepared so as to retain all the virtues o: the crude fresh drug. This I have secured, and, therefore, offer it with confidence to the pro-

public as Sarsaparilla and Blood Puriders.
